A RI Presidential Initiative on MENTAL HEALTH & WELL-BEING (one of the Areas of Focus)

RAISING AWARENESS

We can take action to increase awareness about these issues or advocate for the resources that people in our communities need to live healthier lives. Some ideas to consider:

- ▶ Learn about reliable resources for different kinds of support, such as what organization to call if you're concerned about a friend and which one to call during a crisis. Share these resources and encourage people to prioritize their mental health and seek help when needed.
- ▶ Promote existing local or national resources. These might be confidential support phone lines where people can speak with trained mental health professionals, or they could be emergency services for people in crisis.
- ▶ Ask mental health experts to hold a session about working with vulnerable communities, such as people without housing or survivors of natural disasters. This can sensitize people to the emotional considerations of those you support.
- ▶ Invite mental health professionals to discuss ways people can increase their resilience and seek help. This could be at a club meeting, district assembly, or community event, with speakers such as counselors, therapists, doctors, professors, or spiritual leaders.
- ▶ Form partnerships with secondary schools and universities aimed at encouraging more people to pursue careers in mental health or specialized training. Your club or district could create or support a scholarship for aspiring mental health professionals.

Mental health is a critical issue for young people, often due to the physical, emotional, and social changes they are experiencing. You could raise awareness in this area by:

- ▶ Exploring possible collaborations with organizations that specialize in social-emotional learning and development for youths. This may help create or support activities that strengthen your RYLA, Rotary Youth Exchange, and Interact programs and help young leaders learn about their own mental well-being.
- ▶ Including social-emotional learning with professionals in the preparation for outbound students and host families in your district's Rotary Youth Exchange program. Invite program leaders, like district youth exchange officers, to also take part.
- ▶ Expanding on the great work to raise awareness being done by youth leaders. Young people are often more comfortable discussing this subject and take innovative approaches to reaching wider audiences. Support youth-led campaigns and share engagement opportunities with your club or program participants.
- ▶ Fostering conversations about mental health across age groups by inviting Interactors and youth leaders to discuss how they approach and support mental health. Together, you can explore the cultural and generational barriers to talking about these issues.
- ▶ Having professionals supplement your youth protection training by leading sessions about mental health for club members who work directly with young people.
