GREAT STORIES ABOUT FAMOUS PEOPLE

Steven Spielberg

This great filmmaker, who has contributed to best filmmaking and has won numerous awards and records, has also experienced numerous setbacks in his life. He has been suspended three times from the University of Southern California as a result of the fact that he was unable to achieve higher exam scores in his childhood. Following his enthusiasm and devotion, he continued making incredible films lastly won three Oscar grants and made an entirety of 51 extraordinary motion pictures.

Arnold Schwarzenegger

Arnold Schwarzenegger's process is uncommon, from a modest Austrian town to Hollywood fame. He moved to America against all odds and pursued his dream of becoming an actor and bodybuilder. When he became the youngest ever Mr. Olympia champion at the age of 23, he had his breakout moment. He was able to break into the film industry thanks to this victory, and he went on to star in iconic films like "Conan the Barbarian" and "The Terminator." Arnold's success continued after that; He went on to become Governor of California, demonstrating that ambition and hard work can get you anywhere.
