Global Polio Eradication

Polio Cases Have Decreased by More than 99%

In 1988, the World Health Assembly passed a resolution to eradicate polio, leading to the establishment of the Global Polio Eradication Initiative (GPEI). As a result, partners including Rotary, CDC are working together to ensure that every child receives several doses of polio vaccine.
 Since the launch of GPEI, polio cases have decreased by more than 99%. In addition, polio vaccines have prevented an estimated 20 million cases of paralysis in children since 1988.
 Vaccines have stopped the spread of wild polio virus in all but two countries: Afghanistan and Pakistan. However, other countries have experienced outbreaks of poliovirus variants, which can emerge in areas where immunization rates are low.
 GPEI set a goal of ending all types of polio in 2023 and is working to address barriers to reaching this goal. Because of the COVID-19 pandemic, routine childhood immunization programs and global polio vaccination campaigns were disrupted. GPEI is working to increase global polio vaccination to make up for lost ground.
 Success in eradicating polio will mean that no more children will have to experience the devastating effects of the disease. Failure to eradicate polio could cause polio virus to reappear around the world with an estimated 150,000-200,000 new cases expected every year within 10 years.
