ROTARY PEACE FELLOWSHIPS

In 1999, The Rotary Foundation launched the Rotary Centers for International Studies in Peace and Conflict Resolution, a partnership with seven leading universities around the world to provide advanced educational opportunities for a group of Rotary Peace Fellows chosen from various countries and cultures. Each year, up to 100 fellows are selected to begin either a two-year master's-level degree or a certificate program in Conflict Resolution, Peace studies, and International relations. Rotary districts may nominate as many candidates as they wish for a world-competitive selection process every year. The first Rotary Peace Fellows began their studies in the 2002-03 academic year. By 2010-11, nearly 600 fellows from over 90 countries had completed the program.

The Rotary Peace Centers provide future leaders with opportunities to study the root causes of conflict, theories of international relations, and effective models of cooperation. Beyond academics, Rotary Peace Fellows gain practical tools in conflict resolution for use in their chosen careers. The Rotary Peace Centers also help to advance research, teaching, and publication on issues related to conflict resolution and world understanding.

Since the first class graduated in 2004, Rotary Peace Fellows have been contributing significantly to the world community working for international agencies such as the United Nations or for governments as diplomats, foreign service officers, economists, and policy analysts.
