Power Couple Madhwesh & Pavithra

1#.. Measurable strategy. It should be such that it can be tracked day by day.
2#.. Succession planning. That's the forward thinking. Who has to take it forward, after you have fixed it with your experience.
3#.. Financial and Legal Discipline
The investment incurred on such professionals, should be thought as a value addition. The expertise they bring with them to guide you is invaluable. They are the Charter Accountant and Advocate.
There should be no mixing up of Company's Account and Personal Account. Documentation should be very transparent.
4#.. Enterprising Value
If you go to the Bank with a Project for a loan and the loan is granted without any question, it goes to say that you have a value.
5#..Stake holders They are the centric point relationship. Those are bankers, employees, their families, sponsors, extended families.

There's a word of caution. Never lose professionalism. One should always maintain the subtle line.
A very profound and knowledgeable talk was articulated by Pavithra.
Madhwesh was equally intelligent in analyzing all the valid and associated points.
He emphasized that in a place like Mysore, one should not look at big Corporates. For any Start up or any Entrepreneurship, one has to think out of the box. Conventional Funding is the answer for any SME.
It was a highly motivating discussion. The audience sat in rapt attention.
Take home was that professionalism should not be compromised at any point. Thus even if they are a couple and in the same job, there shall be less of conflicts. Each one should respect the strength and goodness of the other.

As the saying goes, "Together we stand, divided we fall ".
