FEW TIPS ON HOW TO RETAIN MEMBERS AND INCREASE ATTENDANCE

Though Rotary focuses on increasing membership, but all over the world Clubs has found hard task in retaining members and increasing attendance in meetings. Different ideas and exercises were made to retain members and increasing attendance. On recent visit of RI President 2025-26 Mr. Mario Cesar Martins De Camargo at Madurai, India, while addressing a press meet on 25th September 2024 stated that his thrust area will be to increase the membership of Rotary Clubs worldwide and hence he is now going with a 'People of Action' plan through Vision 2030 to bring more people into the Rotary. "Rotary membership in some leading nations is a problem. We lost three lakh members in countries like US, Canada, UK, Australia, Japan etc. The membership interest is declining... In these countries we lost members and the reason could be old age etc. But, membership in India is not a problem, there is no problem in Korea etc. It is a paradox that the Rotary club membership is coming down in the country where the first Rotary club was founded in the year 1905 by a young lawyer and started public service from thereon....As of today, we have 1.4 million Rotary club members in the world and my focus will be to increase Rotary membership through our local level communication and approach. India gave a lot of money to the Rotary Foundation"

However, the difficulties are, different efforts are made to increase attendance and retain members: Some tips are found to be effective, not absolute, may help Clubs to increase attendance and retain members:

- (a) Share articles, webinars, tutorials and other resources that members can't get elsewhere,
- (b) Arrange and conduct workshop training or certification that help members develop skills
- (c) Regularly add new content to a new members site to keep them close
- (d) Do or organise projects in the areas /community where new or absentee members resides and get them involved.

- (e) Organise events in areas where new members or absentee members reside and allow them to participate and give award or certificate,
- (f) Make one to one calls or personalize messages to build deeper relationships and make them feel that members wants them.
- (g) Do not forget members birthday and wish them even personally.
- (h) On anniversary wish spouse as well and the member and bless them
- (i) If children's birth days are known wish them and bless them.
- (j) If the member / spouse or their children make any achievement call them to the meeting for giving reward encourage and felicitate them,
- (k) Any children of the areas or community where absentee members resides makes any achievement call them to the meeting for giving reward, encourage and felicitate them, this will increase Rotary Image also,
- (l) Actively solicit and act on members feedback to make them feel that their suggestions are valued.
- (m) Organized events in Club like games / talks/ other play with absentee and new members.
- (n) Send at least one or two New or Absentee members sponsored by the Club to one day Rotary District events
- (o) Call New or absentee members as guest to Board meeting of the Club and enjoy food and fellowship sponsored by the Club with them.
- (p) Arrange to send Rotary News magazine, Club bulletin and other items of importance to the absentee members.

JUST FEW LINES TO REJUVINATE OUR THOUGHT

The kitchen tap was leaking again. With a sigh, I called a plumber.

A few minutes later, a middle-aged man walked in — calm, steady, carrying a faded toolkit.

I watched him at work. He pulled out a wrench — it was cracked at the handle.

“How will he fix anything with that?” I wondered silently. He didn’t seem bothered. With a quiet focus, he began loosening the pipe.

A rusted portion needed to be cut off. He reached into his bag again and pulled out a small saw — half of it was missing!

Now I was sure: I’ve called the wrong man for the job.

But within ten minutes, the leak was gone. The tap was shining, and not a single drop escaped.

When I handed him a hundred-rupee note, he shook his head.

“No, Sir. Half of this is enough.”

I stared at him, surprised. “Who refuses extra money these days?”

He smiled — a calm, grounded smile.

“Sir, every job has a fixed worth. If I take more today, I’ll expect more tomorrow. When that doesn’t come, I’ll be unhappy. So I prefer to take only what’s fair. It keeps me content.”

I nodded slowly. “At least buy yourself a new wrench and saw. They’ll make your work easier.”

He chuckled softly. “Ah, Sir... tools are meant to wear out. That’s their destiny. But even when they’re chipped or cracked, they still do their job. Just like people — a few scars don’t make us useless.”

He paused, then added, “When you write in your office, does it matter which pen you use? Expensive or ordinary — if you know how to write, you’ll write well with anything. But if you don’t, even the costliest pen won’t help. The skill lies in the hands, not the tool.”

I stood there speechless. His words sank deep. The satisfaction on his weathered face was something rare — something money can’t buy.

A Thought to Treasure

In our endless race for wealth and comfort, we often forget the true “tools” of life — honesty, hard work, gratitude, and contentment.

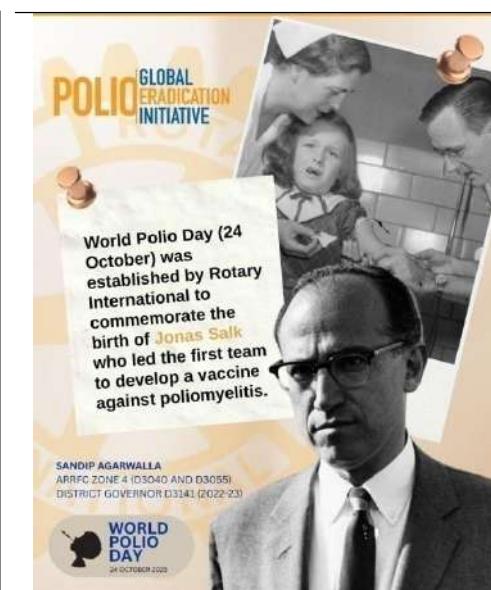

When these are intact, even broken tools can create miracles.

But when they’re missing, no riches in the world can fix the leaks within us.
