Editorial

Good Evening Rotarians,

December is “Rotary's Disease Prevention and Treatment Month”. Throughout this month, Rotary Clubs worldwide focus on promoting health initiatives and raising awareness about various diseases that impact communities globally. The Rotary International aims to reduce the burden of diseases such as polio, malaria, and other potentially public health threats, ultimately improving the quality of millions of people's lives.

The disease prevention campaigns are by design multifaceted encompassing a range of activities starting from vaccination to health education. Rotary partners with local healthcare providers, Governments, and other voluntary organisations to increase access to healthcare services and support those who are affected by disease. By leveraging their global network and resources, Rotarians are making tangible difference in the lives of individuals and communities.

By observing the Disease Prevention and Treatment Month in December rotary reminds the critical role the clubs are playing in promoting global health and well being. By working together to prevent and treat diseases , Rotarians demonstrate their commitment to service above self and their dedication to make positive impact so that others are also inspired to join the fight against disease and promoting a healthier, more equitable world for All.
