EDITORIAL

"If you don't build your dream, someone else will hire you to help them build theirs."

Dhirubhai Ambani

Entrepreneurs are those who have the passion, clear vision, confidence, and ability to take risk. Present day is the era of entrepreneurs. They are the dreamer of innovative ideas. They do thorough research to fulfil their dreams and to avoid mistakes. Their faith and believe of their own abilities drive them to make proper plans and to implement those with appropriate communication for the success of their ventures. The economic development of a country depends on their prosperity and the employment they create.

There are some business ethics to be followed by the entrepreneurs like: adaptability, transparency, honesty, compassion, accountability etc. The business which follows ethics will have a good cliental, less legalities, and will be environment friendly. In the beginning they may face less gain. But these qualities would obtain the trust of customers and investors. This will be helpful for the good reputation and sustainability of a company. It means that an entrepreneur must have most of these skills: Creativity, Professionalism, Planning, Knowledge, Social skills, Open-mindedness, and Empathy.

Rtn. Silvester Schiele, one of the four founders of Rotary, was a successful businessman. He was the president of the Schiele Coal Company from 1902 to 1939.
