Annet's corner:

Peek-a Boo into the life of a Special Educator

This is not the path I thought I would be on in life. I joined school to be a general educational teacher; my dream job was to be a kindergarten teacher! Small events in my life changed my course and for whatever reason (or divine intervention), I found my place to be in special education.

Being a special educator is a privilege. I am part of a unique group of people that tackle challenges with grace and style; we don't stop at "no".

I know this may sound cliché and I don't even know if the word "cool" is cool anymore. But these students are the coolest! I love the various perspectives that they bring to me every day. I enjoy seeing the world through their eyes. I enjoy making the connections and seeing how they think. The more time I get to spend with them, the more I get to experience that mutual respect and genuine understanding are keys to a proper foundation for functional and academic learning.

In my field appreciation is expressed in many forms. Sometimes it is a verbal affirmation and sometimes, it is the small quiet nod I receive from one of my shy, non-verbal students. A student who is resistant to personal touch, that student comes up and gently hugs me, the impact is real. Celebrating small victories in a student's (who has learning disability) life impacts my overall success. This fuels me and my work. Being able to do this every day brings me an indescribable feeling of elation.

- Annet Tulsii Mahendra Kakkad

Please note -

The unique project of Farsan distribution was held on 11th and 12th November, 2020 and not 10th November.
