Supporting the Environment

The Rotary Foundation Trustees and Rotary International Board of Directors have both unanimously approved adding a new area of focus: supporting the environment.

More than $18 million in Foundation global grant funding has been allocated to environment-related projects over the past five years. Creating a distinct area of focus to support the environment will give Rotary members even more ways to bring about positive change in the world and increase our impact.

Supporting the environment becomes Rotary's seventh area of focus, which are categories of service activities supported by global grants. It joins peace building and conflict prevention; disease prevention and treatment; water, sanitation, and hygiene; maternal and child health; basic education and literacy; and community economic development.

Grant applications for projects will be accepted beginning on 1 July 2021. Gifts and commitments from Rotarians and others will be sought to provide global grant support for the new area of focus.

More information about this new cause will be announced soon.

From Hong Kong to Hungary, Rotarians captured perfect moments in our annual photo contest

This year, we received more than 600 entries to our photo contest from 56 countries and geographical areas. The photographs take us from the vast plains of Inner Mongolia to the manmade canyons of Hong Kong. They tell a story of Rotarians exploring the world with open eyes and hearts, making connections across cultures, and capturing beauty wherever they find it.

Our judge, Damon Winter, has brought to his task the discerning eye of a professional photographer. His comments on the images our readers submitted are like a master class in photography; like the best teachers, he sees what is good — and how it might be even better.

In addition to the winners and honorable mentions that appear in this issue, we'll feature more photos from the contest in The Rotarian throughout the coming year.

Rotary provides $20 million to help communities worldwide respond to COVID-19

EVANSTON, Ill. (June 23, 2020) — Rotary members throughout the world are working safely and diligently to assess and provide for urgent community needs as they strive to respond and recover from the effects of COVID-19 coronavirus.

While following social-distancing and health guidelines, they are providing comfort and hope to those feeling the effects of isolation and fear, and focusing their resources and solutions toward supporting frontline health workers and first responders as they battle this disease and save lives.

"As leaders in virtually every community on earth, we bring a unique combination of local knowledge and access to a global network of expertise and resources," said Mark Daniel Maloney, president of Rotary International. "In the face of uncertainty, we are adapting to shifting needs to offer immediate help to people at a rapid pace. And we'll remain committed to recovering from this health crisis for as long as it takes."

Rotary members are taking action to provide a range of solutions including handwashing stations and food to those unable to social distance in Kenya, lifesaving information about preventing the spread of COVID-19 in India, ventilators and protective gear for overstretched hospitals in Italy and vital social connections to neighbors who live alone in Bethesda, Maryland.

The Rotary Foundation, Rotary's charitable arm, has to date awarded $20 million to support Rotary clubs worldwide in their immediate response to COVID-19 in their communities, and to long term recovery efforts.

About Rotary: Rotary brings together a global network of volunteer leaders dedicated to tackling the world's most pressing humanitarian challenges. Rotary connects 1.2 million members of more than 35,000 Rotary clubs in over 200 countries and geographical areas. Their work improves lives at both the local and international levels, from helping those in need in their own communities to working toward a polio-free world.

The History of Rotary

The world's first service club was founded on 23 February 1905 when lawyer Paul Harris and three friends met in a small office in downtown Chicago. These men wanted to rekindle in the turn-of-the-century city the spirit of friendliness they had known in their home towns. Word of the club soon spread and others were invited to join. They named their new club "Rotary" to describe the practice of meeting in rotation at the members' various places of business.

Originally formed for fellowship, the first Rotary club quickly evolved to use the talents and resources of its members to serve the community. By the end of 1905, the Rotary Club of Chicago had 30 members. Three years later a second club was established in San Francisco, California, USA. The next year three more clubs were established on the west coast of the United States and a fourth in New York City. Within a few years other groups formed service clubs based on the Rotary model.

First Rotary Convention

The first Rotary convention was held in the Congress Hotel in Chicago in August 1910.

The National Association of Rotary Clubs was organised at that time with 16 member clubs. Rotary founder Paul Harris was elected the association's first president.

Rotary's international growth

During the 1911-1912 Rotary year, the association became international with the founding of a club in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada. Soon Rotary crossed the Atlantic to establish clubs in England, Ireland and Northern Ireland. The National Association of Rotary Clubs, which became the International Association of Rotary Clubs in 1912, adopted the name Rotary International (RI) in 1922.

Before reaching its 20th birthday, the Rotary association had grown to include some 200 clubs with more than 20,000 members across the globe:

- The first Rotary club in Latin America was organised in Havana, Cuba in 1915.
- Asia's first club was established in Manila, Philippines in 1919.
- In 1921, Rotary clubs were organised for the first time on continental Europe (Madrid, Spain), Africa (Johannesburg, South Africa), and Australia (Melbourne).

Working for peace – The Rotary Foundation

As Rotary grew, so did its scope of activities. During World War I, Rotary discovered new outlets for service — in war relief and peace fund drives at home and in emergency efforts abroad. In 1917, outgoing RI President Arch Klumph proposed the establishment of an endowment fund, which in 1928 became The Rotary Foundation. The Foundation awarded its first humanitarian grant (US$500) in 1930 to the International Society for Crippled Children. After World War II, many clubs that had been disbanded during the conflict were re-established and initiated new service projects, including relief efforts for refugees and prisoners of war.

In the aftermath of World War II, Rotary International sent the largest non-governmental organisation delegation to the United Nations Charter Conference, held in 1945 in San Francisco. Forty-nine Rotarians served as delegates, advisors and consultants to the conference. A Rotary-sponsored conference of education ministers and observers held in London in 1943 was the inspiration for the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organisation (UNESCO), established in 1946.

The Rotary Foundation enjoyed modest growth until 1947, when Rotarians made a significant number of contributions in memory of Paul Harris, who died in January 1947. That same year the Foundation launched its first program, Graduate Fellowships (today called Ambassadorial Scholarships), sending 18 students abroad to seven countries. Today, approximately 1,300 students study abroad as Rotary Scholars every year.

Two of Rotary's programs for young people, Rotaract and Interact, were started during the turbulent 1960s. Interact (for youth ages 14-18) and Rotaract (for young adults ages 18-30) clubs operate under the guidance of a sponsoring Rotary club and give young people opportunities for community service and leadership development, and to promote international peace and understanding. Service to youth remains an important focus of Rotary.

Rotary today

Rotary's most ambitious undertaking, announced in 1985, is the PolioPlus program — a massive campaign to eradicate polio by the year 2005. Conducted with the cooperation of national governments and intergovernmental agencies such as the World Health Organisation (WHO) and the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), PolioPlus is a paradigm for public/private sector collaboration in the fight against disease. PolioPlus helps support national and regional polio eradication programs by providing vaccine, surveillance support and social mobilization. By the year 2005 — the target date for certification of a polio-free world — Rotarian contributions to the global polio eradication effort will reach a half billion US dollars.

Women in Rotary

First admitted in 1987, women are today the fastest-growing segment of Rotary membership, and increasingly hold leadership positions within the organisation. More than 2,000 women serve as club presidents and women are also rapidly assuming regional leadership roles. Currently, some 1.2 million professional men and women belong to more than 30,000 clubs worldwide.

Rotary continues to grow internationally. After the collapse of the Iron Curtain, Rotary clubs which had been disbanded during World War II were re-established in central and eastern Europe. In 1990, Rotary clubs were formed in Russia for the first time, and other former Soviet republics soon followed. Kyrgyzstan, once a part of the Soviet Union, is a recent addition.

Today, Rotary International encourages its clubs to focus on a broad spectrum of service activities such as hunger, the environment, violence prevention, illiteracy, drug abuse prevention, polio eradication, youth, the elderly, and AIDS awareness and education. Rotary clubs around the world are united under the motto "Service Above Self."

My Journey..... As A Spouse In Rotary

I inherited Rotary from my parents as they were active Rotarians of Rotary club of Bharuch. Since my childhood days, I happened to witness many milestone events of Rotary, which, by and large, was just fun time. My comprehension of Rotary revolved only around enjoyment, celebrations, going on picnics and eating good food, partying till late nights.

Its only after my husband Rtn Ashvin, got inducted in RC of Bharuch, I realised that Rotary performs many service projects for the community in the backdrop of visible fun activities.

This realisation took very serious turn when my husband got into core group of committee of Rotary, finally to become president of this historic club in the year 1992-93. Unable to react to this, a voice of resistance would be normal., as I had no clue as to what this may lead us to. As our professional carrier had just begun to streamline, with two young kids to be taken care of and negotiating routine household chores, apprehension was inevitable.

But, I can not help confessing here, the year, 1992-93, when my husband was president, was one of the most enjoyable years of my life. This was the time, we got out of our shell and made so many friends both in the club as well as in the District.. I personally got. involved in many service projects. Be they club service, Community service, vocational or International service projects, I became part of these projects. Got involved in the logistic of pre and post programs arrangements. As mentioned earlier, to get involved in these along with all the domestic chores was a great challenge, Still this was acceptable due to the pleasure it gave was immeasurable.

As I said earlier, the biggest advantage of being in Rotary/ Being president is it gave us so many friends with whom, we are still partying today. Its almost 31 years in Rotary for us. I also have been offering professional services in all the medical camps Rotary organises in the community. This gives me immense satisfaction. Its beyond doubt so fulfilling, which gives a perfect sense of purpose in life.

I am so touched by the service platform Rotary offers that it has become now way of life for both of us. I am personally indebted to Rotary club of Bharuch for enriching our lives by offering these opportunity.

ROTARY BHARUCH PERMANENT PROJECTS

From the Desk of President :

Dear Fellow Rotarians,
It is indeed a significant moment of reckoning for me as I take the Presidential charge of this magnificent Rotary Club of Bharuch. It is truly overwhelming and demanding to go ahead with the legacy left behind by my previous leaders that have set great and sometimes insurmountable benchmarks. What really gives me comfort and confidence is the spirit of

I can assure you all that our Club, on its path of

I am looking forward to continued blessings and support from you all as we accomplish yet another great Rotary year with sole motto of 'Service above Self'.

President Manish and his team have done extraordinary work during the previous term in spite of the looming global pandemic crisis and we hope that this crisis is soon taken care off while we maintain the high spirit in serving society.
